COVER STORIES

20 Ronan Ryan

The Dublin restaurateur was hit hard by the property crash and again by NPHET's lockdown. His new direction is a brasserie in the heart of Donnybrook in Dublin 4

36 Crypto currency

With their notional values, unregulated market and extreme volatility, crypto currencies like Dogecoin, which was launched as a joke, are in line with the times

31 EMR

Mark Quinn swapped toilet-cleaning for telemetry, and is now landing big UK utilities contracts with EMR Integrated Solutions, from its base in Co Meath

52 TitanHQ

It took 20 years for the email security company in Galway to take private equity on board. Ronan Kavanagh reflects that earlier investment would have resulted in less stress

ALSO INSIDE

10 Office Return

Employers are pencilling in a return to office working from September. They would appreciate immediate government guidance

12 Enterpryze

Morgan Browne's company has developed a SAP-lite for businesses. It's gone down well in Singapore and now the product is seeking traction in the Irish market

26 Champions League

The football competition's money pool is immense. No wonder the Super Clubs want to exclude the minnows

38 Glantus

Veteran entrepreneur Maurice Healy is back on the stock market more than two decades after being there before

44 Innovation Masterclass

The state is directing huge amounts of taxpayer funding to promote innovation. How disruptive are novel technologies?

54 Employment Law

A Supreme Court ruling on how the Workplace Relations Commission operates will result in increased costs for employers

56 Startups

Conor Kerley's Phytaphix is finding traction with powdered nutrition, while Noel Dykes is improving performance reviews with Frankli

58 Britain Alone

Conor Lenihan reviews Philip Stephens' post-WW II history of Britain, tracing the nation's sometimes delusional path to Brexit
